1 Coding Rules

All datasets are disaggregated by the actors involved in the conflict. Specifically, we distinguish four types of actors:

- Government: incumbent government, pro-government militia, third party acting on incumbent's behalf
- Rebel: rebels, anti-government militia, third party acting on rebels' behalf, and other armed groups directly challenging the government
- Civilians: civilians
- Other: local militia, tribe, other non-state actors not directly challenging the government

2 Armed Conflict Location and Event Data Project (ACLED)

Armed Conflict Location & Event Data Project (ACLED) is the public collection of political violence and protest data for developing states. This data includes information on the specific dates and locations of political violence and protest, the types of event, the groups involved, fatalities, and changes in territorial control. Information is recorded on the battles, killings, riots, and recruitment activities of rebels, governments, militias, armed groups, protesters and civilians. ACLED is directed by Prof. Clionadh Raleigh and is presently supported by Minerva project funding through the CCAPS program and the European Research Commission grant no. 283755.<sup>1</sup>
